AlterTheater's 2011/2012 Season includes:

- A Man, His Wife, and His Hat by Lauren D. Yee. A commissioned world premiere!
November 9th through December 4th
Written specifically for AlterTheater's ensemble of actors, this quirky comedy about family love and hidden secrets stars Associate Artist Will Marchetti as Hetchman, a hat-maker in love with his hat...and his wife. When they both go missing, will he finally leave his armchair to pursue them? And why is there a golem, a talking wall, and a disembodied voice heckling him? Written by rising star and San Francisco playwright Lauren D. Yee, and also featuring Associate Artists Patricia Silver and Jeanette Harrison, and introducing to AlterTheater Hugo Cabrajal, Jonathan Deline, and longtime member of Tony-Award winning San Francisco Mime Troupe Ed Holmes.
- TBA
Winter 2012
We're keeping an eye on a couple exciting new plays that are being developed elsewhere in the nation, all of which have fantastic roles for our company of artists.
- References to Salvador Dali Make Me Hot by Obie Award winning playwright and Oscar-nominated screenwriter Jose Rivera.
April 28th through May 20th, 2012
With a mix of sultry poetry and quick-fire dialogue, Puerto Rican playwright Jose Rivera offers an impassioned tug-of-war between a husband's swaggering commitment to a life in the army, and his wife's increasing desire for something more. Equal parts humor and pathos, References to Salvador Dali Make me Hot uses elements of the surreal and fantastic to tell a story about two people trying to recapture what it was to fall in love. Featuring AlterTheater's newest associate artist and Princess Grace award winner Matt Jones (Intimate Apparel, Two Sisters and a Piano) as enlisted man Benito.

Plus: NEW! AlterTheater Lab. Supporting the developing work of playwrights and associate artists. Featuring Denmo Ibrahim (Funny, a Trunk Show), Ann Brebner (adapter of Anne Lamott's Hard Laughter for the stage), Robert Ernst, Dawn Scott, and Rebecca Frank. Two showcase performances available FOR FREE to subscribers!
